

Northeast Development & Investment Team Sets Sail in 12-Metre Regatta to Benefit the Brain Science Foundation

Newport, RI, May 16, 2010 – On a gorgeous Sunday afternoon, NEDI team members AJ Rich, Andrew Haddad, Jeffrey Jorge and Adam Benson closed up shop early for the day to come out and show their support for the Brain Science Foundation, where they participated as a corporate sponsor in a 12-Metre Regatta. The race began on Goat Island and ended in the Narragansett Bay.

The Brain Science Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to finding a cure for meningiomas and other primary brain tumors and to advancing the understanding of brain function as it relates to these tumors. The BSF supports the work and goals of the Institute for the Neurosciences at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, in basic and clinical research, promising new diagnostic methods, treatments and opportunities to improve the quality of patient care. The foundation takes an entrepreneurial approach to funding brain tumor research with a keen sense of urgency about outcomes and measurable progress. This stands to directly impact the hundreds of thousands of patients and loved ones affected by a brain tumor, as well as the thousands of unsuspecting people who will receive this devastating diagnosis. To date, the Brain Science Foundation has committed over ten million dollars toward research, education and patient support.
